Product Description

Public Access Trauma (PAcT) First Aid Kit

In November 2021, the United Kingdom Government introduced standards for Public Access Trauma First Aid Kits (PAcT First Aid Kits), which are designed to support the treatment of immediate, life-threatening injuries such as severe bleeding.

The PAcT First Aid Kit is designed to be used by ANY person, regardless of their level of first aid training, to help save lives.

INTRODUCTION OF PACT FIRST AID KITS

These kits are being introduced in public places such as shops, arenas, football stadiums, and railway stations to support first aid efforts until the arrival of emergency services. Kits can even be used by an injured individual who is capable of self-treatment.

All business premises operated by both public and private sector organisations are being encouraged to include PAcT First Aid kits within their first aid provisions.

The Gibb Group PAcT kit includes military-grade wound dressings, commercial tourniquets, and other essential components, along with instructions for use. It is enclosed in a durable box with a hinged lid, providing easy access to the kit's contents.

The kit is clearly marked as a "Public Access Trauma (PAcT) First Aid Kit" for easy identification, and a grab handle makes it easy to carry to a casualty.

PACT KITS - OPTIONAL TRAINING COURSES

The introduction of PAcT Kits presents organisations with the opportunity to reassess the training and medical equipment provision within their venues.

This allows them to raise awareness among staff members regarding the contents of PAcT Kits and the appropriate methods for their deployment in case of necessity.

PAcT Kit – Designed to be:

- Used for the immediate treatment of life-threatening injuries
- Used by ANY person, even those who have no first aid training
- Easily carried to a casualty, to provide treatment
- Available in all Public Spaces

Gibb Group, as experts in advanced first aid, provides various optional training solutions to complement PAcT Kit provision. These solutions cater to the diverse budget and risk profiles of organisations.

Training is designed to ensure that organisations have competent on-site responders who can effectively assist the public during emergencies, thereby augmenting the capabilities of emergency services.

Options include:

- PAcT E-Learning, pricing of which is banded in line with the number of users licensed
- Mass Casualty Event Responder (MACER) course, which is dual-certificated with Emergency First Aid at Work (EFAW)
- Immediate Emergency Care (IEC) course, which is available at various levels from IEC Basic to our intensive 3-Day IEC Advanced course.
